JANUARY PRESENTATION

Carol Haines on Art and Fear

High school introduced Carol Hines to theater design and set the stage for participation in Garden City Civic Theater as designer and director. She also did some work for Schoolcraft College Theater with design and costumes.

While her husband Ken and she were raising their two children, she worked at Garden City High School teaching Theater Arts, and then when the kids were in school full time, she decided to earn a living in nursing. She retired in 2004 at which time her nursing buddies and doctors honored her with an easel and some rudimentary paints and said "start painting again".

Now she belongs to the Garden City Fine Arts Association, currently serving as President.
She has had the honor of twice receiving the Norma McQueen Award for Landscapes, and a best of show. She has taken a first place and a couple of people's choice awards. These were all in the club's art shows.

Carol has paintings in professional offices, churches, and 2 murals on a Fire Department wall.

She believes art is an ever expanding view of the eye, hand coordination experience, and the thrill of when it happens "just right".

Join us January 7th when Carol will share her insights in how to overcome our fears which may be holding back our creative expressions.
